Course Website
Announcements, lecture notes, readings, assignments, etc. will be posted on Canvas at seattleu.instructure.com/courses/1580308. Canvas works best with Chrome and Firefox browsers, but has compatibility issues with Safari.

Textbook and Readings
Course textbook: Krugman, Obstfeld, Melitz, International Economics: Theory and Policy, 10th edition. 11th or 9th editions are acceptable.
Additionally, I will assign supplementary articles and post them on Canvas.

Course Summary
This course explains the mechanics of the processes brought about by globalization, which has profound implications for private and public decision making. After taking this course, students would be able to analyze both macroeconomic and microeconomic aspects of international economics: the movement of goods and services studied by the international trade discipline, on one hand, and the movement of financial assets studied by the international finance field, on the other. The course features include economic modeling, analysis of data, and critical evaluation of policy.

The course consists of two modules:
1. International finance
   a. introduction of key international finance terminology
   b. application of concepts and models of international finance to macroeconomic problems that both developed and emerging economies experienced in the past and face at present
2. International trade
   a. introduction of the main models of international trade
   b. application of the international trade models to policy analysis
Grading
Performance in this class is measured by the following:
1 non-comprehensive and 1 comprehensive exam, and 4 homework assignments.
I reserve the right to assign participation points.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Assignment</th>
<th>Weight, %</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2 exams: short essay and problem solving exercises</td>
<td>35+35</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4 homeworks: short essay and problem solving exercises</td>
<td>30</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

To meet Albers School of Business and Economics requirements, the grades will be curved.
Note: to succeed in this course, I expect you to do the readings indicated in the schedule before the class meetings.

Academic Integrity
Since group work is an important part of your learning experience, I strongly encourage you to review the course material with your classmates and work on homeworks in study groups. However, each of you should write and submit your own answers. Copy-pasting will give you no credit. Cheating on the exams will result in failure.

Use of electronic devices
Electronic devices, such as laptops or tablets, will be allowed in class for educational purposes. You are welcome to follow my lectures using course slides and/or take notes on your device. However, I reserve the right to ask you to put your device away if I feel this privilege is abused.
Please refrain from using cell phones, graphing calculators, laptops, or tablets on exams & quizzes. Four-function and scientific calculators are fine.

Support for students with disabilities
If you have, or think you may have, a disability (including an “invisible disability” such as a learning disability, a chronic health problem, or a mental health condition) that interferes with your performance as a student in this class, you are encouraged to arrange support services and/or accommodations through Disabilities Services staff located in Loyola 100, (206) 296-5740. Disability-based adjustments to course expectations can be arranged only through this process.

Nondiscrimination Policy
Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 (Title IX) prohibits discrimination based on sex in educational programs or activities that receive Federal financial assistance. This prohibition includes sexual misconduct, which encompasses sexual harassment and sexual violence. Seattle U remains committed to providing a safe and equitable learning, living, and working environment. Seattle U offers emergency, medical, and other support resources, as well as assistance with safety and support measures, to community members who have experienced or been impacted by sexual misconduct. Seattle U requires all faculty and staff to notify the University’s Title IX Coordinator if they become aware of any incident of sexual misconduct experienced by a student. For more information, please visit https://www.seattleu.edu/equity. If you have any questions or concerns, you may also directly contact the Title IX Coordinator in the Office of Institutional Equity (oie@seattleu.edu; (206)296-2824).
