Content:

ECON 2130, Principles of Macroeconomics, focuses on economic activity at the societal and international level. It is concerned with inflation, output growth and stability, unemployment, and international economic relations. Naturally, discussion of these topics leads to questions of social justice and to consideration of appropriate governmental policy actions. These questions represent a considerable portion of public discussion and debate. This class is designed to help students become engaged citizens by developing a framework through which they can understand and participate in such public discourse.

Text:

Karl Case and Ray Fair, Principles of Macroeconomics, eighth edition, Prentice Hall, 2007.
Copies of previous course examinations will be available at SuperCopy

Grading:

The student will be graded on the basis of his/her performance on two midterm examinations (20 and 35% respectively), classroom and homework assignments (10%), and a COMPREHENSIVE final exam (35%). All assignments and exams will be graded on a curve.

Attendance: Attendance is required for this class. Failure to attend class will result in a lower course grade.

Homework: Homework assignments will be collected at the beginning of class on the date assigned. Late homework will not be accepted.

Makeups: No makeup exams will be given. If an exam is missed and the absence excused, the weight of that exam will be added to the final exam. If a student cannot take the regularly scheduled final exam he/she should take the course during a different quarter.

Office of Institutional Equity

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 (Title IX) prohibits discrimination based on sex in educational programs or activities that receive Federal financial assistance. This prohibition includes sexual misconduct, which encompasses sexual harassment and sexual violence. Seattle U remains committed to providing a safe and equitable learning, living, and working environment. Seattle U offers emergency, medical, and other support resources, as well as assistance with safety and support measures, to community members who have experienced or been impacted by sexual misconduct.

Seattle U requires all faculty and staff to notify the University's Title IX Coordinator if they become aware of any incident of sexual misconduct experienced by a student.

For more information, please visit <https://www.seattleu.edu/equity/>. If you have any questions or concerns, you may also directly contact the Title IX Coordinator in the Office of Institutional Equity (email: oi@seattleu.edu; phone: 206.296.2824) University Resources and Policies
